ST. CLOUD IS BEST PAVED CITY OF ITS SIZE, SAYS CARL DANN

BUSINESS MEN UNDETERRED BY HEAVY RAINS HELD ROUSING MEETING WEDNESDAY EVENING AND DISPOSED OF TIMELY BUSINESS MATTERS

CAMPAIGN TO COMBAT MAIL ORDER HOUSES AND "BUY AT HOME" IS LAUNCHED WITH ENTHUSIASM AND ALREADY PROVING SOUND. "FINEST MOVEMENT EVER STARTED", SAYS DR. HYNDMAN

MARKED IMPROVEMENT IN ALL LINES OF BUSINESS IS REPORTED

The heavy downpour of rain last night failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the members of the St. Cloud Business Men's Club, who gathered at the Chamber of Commerce for their weekly session. Believing that St. Cloud offers every advantage as an ideal location for homes and business enterprises, the members of the club are entering a campaign of publicity that will bring about closer co-operation between all interests. The first page of advertising through this paper appears on page three today, and every citizen of St. Cloud is urged to read this introduction, then make note of the membership of the club, which is given with the advertisement. A call on members of the club will bring information concerning matters of all kinds.

That the business interests can combat the "mail order" buying problem with merchandise and prices offered right at home, is the general belief of those interested in the substantial development of the city, and already results have been seen from the announcements made last week of the educational campaign that is to be conducted.

"Finest Movement Ever Started"

Dr. Iver G. Hyndman, pastor of the Methodist church, after reading the announcements last week, remarked that it was his opinion that the movement started by the Business Men's Club was the "finest movement ever started," and with closer co-operation among the business interests and buying public of St. Cloud many good results would come from this concerted effort.

Dr. Hyndman is a man of world-wide experience, and has noted conditions confronting business men of many nations, and can speak from first-hand information on such matters. He has seen co-operative and educational work succeed, and his commendation of the local plans reflects the opinions of a large percentage of the general public.

"Bowed Down"

Manager Blackbeard, of the Persons Co., who made an announcement in the Tribune last week that that store would meet prices and quality, and exceed the service rendered by any mail order house, if a catalog was brought to the store for comparison, reports that he was taken at his word by customers during the past week. In every case, the customers found that articles of the same or better quality were on sale here at the same or lower prices than mail order catalogs listed them, when the matter of transportation was added to the price quoted. In addition the customer had behind their purchase the guarantee of a local merchant who helps to run the city with the various contributions to public welfare. Mr. Blackbeard is well pleased with the results to date, and this week makes two more important announcements in this issue.

Other interviews and incidents of the campaign will be given each week during the next few months, and some interesting data is expected to be compiled in this effort to get the business men and buying public closer together.

Credit Plan Special Order

At the meeting last night much of the discussion was on the matter of encouraging the formation of a credit plan, with the idea that such a movement would be of general benefit to the whole community. Several different plans were discussed, but no definite action taken, the matter finally being made a special order of business for next Wednesday evening, when a full report from the committee appointed is expected to be made.

Several new members were received into the club last night, and other names were proposed for membership. It is proposed to make the membership 100 per cent. of the business concerns in the city. The qualifications are that a member must be in business of some kind in St. Cloud, and now that the charter has been closed for some time, all new applications must be voted on at regular meetings of the club.

Advertisers Becoming Active

That business conditions are rapidly improving, and that the local business concerns are ready to take care of a big increase of business, can be proven from the various advertisements appearing in this issue of the Tribune and from others that have been arranged for in future issues. This kind of "news"—advertising news—is of as much general interest as any report of the daily happenings that appear in a newspaper. Readers should peruse the advertising columns thoroughly to keep posted on the progress of the city.

TRAVELERS GUIDE.

The people of St. Cloud, who wish to meet any train or have business or say kind in Kissimmee, will be pleased to know that Lowe's Bus Line is being operated daily between those two points.

The bus at the present time leaves St. Cloud, 9 a. m. in the morning and 12:45 p. m.; 3:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. The bus stops at Hotel Hunter Arms.

WILL HOLD UP ROAD UNTIL BOND ISSUE IS SETTLED

MEANWHILE COUNTY GANG IS PROCEEDING WITH GRADING OF ST. CLOUD-KISSIMMEE ROUTE

The contractors on the rebuilding of the St. Cloud-Kissimmee road have been told by the county engineer to hold up ordering material for the work until the litigation over the $150,000 bond issue is settled. This was made known by the engineer Monday, when he was asked if he had ordered the contractors to proceed with the work, as was reported on the streets during the past week. Mr. Johnston stated when he learned of the delay the appeal would cause that he told the contractors not to proceed until further orders.

This means that if the case is graded to the advantage of that, no action can be taken on completion of the work until at least some time in November. Next Saturday is set as the limit for completion of the appeal, and then ten days are allowed for briefing the case, and the attorneys for the county board is then allowed five days to answer the case. This will put the matter up to the first of November in reaching the court for consideration. The question of when the case will then be disposed of will rest with the court, but it is understood that the attorneys will make special effort to get an early hearing on the matter.

In the meantime the county road gang is at work on making the grade for the new sixteen foot road surface with asphalt finish, and the contractors will not be delayed longer than is necessary to have the court matter disposed of and delivery made of the bonds. This, however, will be long enough so that the road cannot be completed before next year.

ORLANDO SHORT CUT HIGHWAY MAKING PROGRESS

Such marked progress is being made by Orange county on the St. Cloud-Kissimmee-Orlando short cut highway that it is safe to predict that the road will be opened up before the winter season has advanced very far.

As published before, the Osceola end of the road has been completed for some time. Now Orange county has some six or seven miles completed and the entire route connecting with Osceola graded. The work of laying down road and hard-surfacing this section is being pushed forward with success.

TO DEMONSTRATE AT HILL'S STORE 2 P.M. NEXT SATURDAY

Announcement is made by Mr. Victor Hill that there will be a demonstration of General Electric refrigerators at his store Saturday afternoon from two until four o'clock.

The purpose of this demonstration is to show in detail the numerous advantages of electrical refrigeration and sample delicacies will be served to those attending.

Electrical refrigeration cannot be appreciated unless it is thoroughly understood, says Mr. Hill, and he hopes to have a lot of the St. Cloud housewives present to see just how these appliances will help cut down the household expenses.

Mrs. B. G. Mann is preparing the refreshments for the occasion.

EXTRA! RUTH ELDER AND HALDEMAN FORCED DOWN NEAR AZORES

Reported Safe on Board Oil Tanker Headed For Texas, But News Is Meager at Press Time—Believed to Have Been Within 600 Miles of Goal

Ruth Elder and George Haldeman were safe this afternoon on board an oil tanker, about 1,000 miles out of Rotterdam and near the Azores. The tanker is headed for Beaumont, Texas, according to a wireless sent by the craft's captain to his London agent. Both Miss Elder and Mr. Haldeman are safe and sound, and the airplane was brought down by the main gas pipe burning and the gas leaking into the sea below, thus blighting the ambitions of the aviators in their hop toward Paris by approximately six hundred miles.

The information came by an Associated Press Dispatch received late this afternoon, and is yet meager concerning details. It did not state whether the tanker, a slow plying ship, would turn back with the party, convey the couple to another ship when sighted along its route, or carry the aviators on to Texas. It did not say what disposition had been made of the ship, according to information reaching St. Cloud at press time.

Ruth Elder, the pretty Lakeland, Florida, woman and George Haldeman, took off for France from Roosevelt Field at 5:04 yesterday afternoon. Haldeman drove the plane while his companion sat in a cabin chair, praying that she might be the first woman to fly over the Atlantic.

It was generally predicted that, barring trouble on their flight, the couple would have reached Paris at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

ST. CLOUD HI'S OUT TO BEAT MT. VERDE TOMORROW

In the hope of winning their third victory of the season, the St. Cloud High School football team, with friends and rooters for the local grins, will leave here Friday for Mt. Verde, where they will meet the Mount Verde industrial school contingent in the afternoon.

The overthrow of the Winter Garden team last Friday by a score of 13 to nothing by the St. Cloud boys has elevated the spirits of St. Cloud enthusiasts, and gave for the injury to Veldon Walters left halfback, at Winter Garden last week, which prevents announcement today of the time-up tomorrow, the season's schedule would appear exceedingly rosy for the St. Cloud Hi team.

During the second quarter in the Winter Garden game last Friday young Walters broke his collar bone and had to retire immediately from the game and was brought back to St. Cloud by Dr. Chann, who attended the game with the boys.

Among others, beside Dr. and Mrs. Chann, who motored to Winter Garden for last week's clash were Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Dawley and son, Bobby; Clarence Dawley, Mr. Berry, Mrs. P. E. Morgan, Mrs. Katherine French and daughter, Betty Kay, L. U. Zimmerman, J. K. Conn, Paul Kirkpatrick, Mr. Murrin, A. J. Geiger, E. R. Becker, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hollis, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. H. F. ## BAPTISTS ENJOY A SPLENDID TWO DAYS' MEET

Delegates and visitors to the annual meeting of the Wekiva Baptist Association at the Baptist church here Tuesday and Wednesday, were outspoken in their praise of the hospitality of the local church people as they took leave for their respective homes today.

During the two-day convention many notable speakers were heard and a genuine Baptist association was enjoyed. Details of the meeting will be had in next week's issue of the Tribune.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD FINE MEETING AT SUNSET BEACH

Approximately 75 members of the Union Young Peoples Society gathered by a huge camp fire and under the rays of a brilliantly shining full moon on the shores of Sunset Beach on Monday evening, where they spent one of the most enjoyable gatherings the members of the society have participated in since the formation of the Union.

It was the occasion of the annual society meeting and picnic of the society, and ample quantities of chicken plan and other picnic baskets and refreshments were brought to the camp by the attendants.

The meeting was opened by songs and prayer around the camp fire, after which followed the election of officers, Mrs. Marion Ross being named president; Mr. G. O. Hicketts, vice-president and Miss Francis Conn, secretary-treasurer.

C. C. Pike, who was present, said it was one of the most impressive meetings he had attended and that the full moon had never shown better on the broad ocean-like beach of the lake where Sunset Beach is located.

After all formalities had been concluded the young people began playing various games, which they continued until 10 o'clock, some being loathe to return home at that hour.

So pleased was everyone present with the picnic that it was voted unanimously to hold similar meetings every two months instead of annually as heretofore.

SIX COUNTY MEETING OF TEACHERS AT ORLANDO TODAY

WEDNESDAY'S C. OF C. MEET MADE BRIEF FOR DANN TALK

Routine business was sharply abbreviated at Wednesday's Chamber of Commerce luncheon, to make way for the speech of the day, which was delivered by H. Carl Dann, widely known realty developer of Orlando.

J. J. Johnston reported that the joint committee, appointed by the Chamber of Commerce and the Business Men's Club, to call upon the mayor of Kissimmee in the hope of reaching some understanding concerning a suit now pending to prevent the validation of the $150,000 county bond issue, had not been able to fulfill its mission due to the absence of the committee's chairman.

President Pike, on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, thanked the committee, but urged Mr. Johnston to impress upon the members the importance of taking the quickest possible action.

Mr. Porter reported that the Chamber of Commerce and American Legion had agreed to consolidate every effort to make Armistice Day celebration in St. Cloud a historic one for the city, and that another celebration in the fashion of a home-coming week festival would be staged later on in the year. This seemed to meet the approval of all concerned.

Due to the widely circulated news of Mr. Dann's intention to address the chamber, the rooms and tables were taxed to capacity.

The diners were delighted with some splendid old-time fiddling rendered by Messrs. P. J. Raymond and Egbert Gillette of St. Cloud.

GO TO CHURCH DAY THIRD SUNDAY IN NOVEMBER

At the regular meeting of the St. Cloud Ministerial Association on Monday morning, it was decided to hold the annual Thanksgiving service in the Baptist church, with Dr. Taylor as the preacher.

The offering as usual will be for benevolent purposes.

Arrangements were also made for the observance of the third Sunday in November as Go-To-Church Sunday. Business men and all interested in the community will be urged to co-operate. A special advertising campaign will be carried out.

Dr. Hyndman was asked to secure if possible the co-operation of the Kissimmee ministers in making the day one of county-wide church attendance.

ENTERTAIN ST. CLOUD TEACHERS

Teachers of the St. Cloud schools were guests on last Thursday evening of the ladies of the Minnie E. Neal Temperance Union, the reception being held in the parlors of the St. Cloud hotel, through the courtesy of the owners of the establishment, Mr. and Mrs. Fortner.

The assemblage occurred under pleasing and impressive conditions, every niche and corner of the parlors being decorated with flowers of various hues and colors, strikingly blending with the appropriately lighted halls.

Splendid music and various readings constituted the entertainment of the evening, except the greater delight the teachers and members of the Union seemed to have derived from being in position to again mingle in their annual gathering and talk over the interesting events of a year gone and the probabilities of the year to come.

Miss Marguerita Morris and Mr. Russell held prominent roles in the evening while Mrs. Dorothy Taylor rendered a sol. Rev. Campbell of the Presbyterian church made a timely talk.

A good many bright moons have passed over St. Cloud since the rooms of the chamber of commerce have been so softly packed as they were Wednesday, when old and young, members and non-members, assembled alike to hear H. Carl Dann of Orlando, indomitable Florida real estate developer and irrepressible builder and booster, tell the people of this city that everything is all right in Florida.

And during a three quarters of an hour cyclonic speech, effectively accented at every turn, he evoked more laughter in one minute and dropped more brows in serious approval of the sound points he drove home, one after another, in the next, than probably it had been the destination of any other speaker who ever addressed that body before to enjoy.

Mr. Dann was introduced by an old Orlando friend as a man who had undoubtedly done more than any other single man to help build the beautiful city of Orlando today, from the standpoint of the genuine developer; as a man who had taken a place in the real estate business of Florida akin to that once occupied in the transportation life of the state by Henry M. Flagler; as a man who had often been talked of for governor and one whose friends still believed he would make the goal some day; as a man who had tackled and successfully put down across state one important real estate development since he became a citizen, a number of years ago—and is still able to stay in the midst of the thousands of people to whom he has sold property; and, above all, a man who came from one of Florida's oldest and finest families. "I say this," said the gentleman making the introduction, "because you should know who you are going to hear, where he comes from and what he has done."

Everyone present evidently was anxious to hear Mr. Dann begin his own speech, as a storm of applause immediately followed while the honoree and speaker of the day walked leisurely down to the end of two long tables accommodating the diners, where he plunged into a scorching fable of the part his people played in Florida's early history, especially with reference to how his own forefathers had dug the holes for the great lakes in Osceola county, as well as in Orange county, and then hauled water from the Atlantic ocean to fill them up.

As quickly he correctly described how he came down to St. Cloud about 17 years ago and thought everybody was crazy for trying to build a town here and how he had hung his youthful head in despair as he concurred in predictions he heard on every hand that the old soldiers and all the rest of the people pouring into the then tent city would soon perish to death.

He clinched his crowd with an anticlimax on this point by seriously declaring that "today I am not surprised—I am astounded, to ride over these beautiful cement streets you have here and to witness the great lake front improvements you are putting down."

"Indeed," he continued, "St. Cloud is one of the best paved cities of its size I know in the world. You are doing something here worth while, and greater things are immediately ahead of you."

The speaker then engaged in a series of rib-splitting stories, told in satirical fashion, concerning a trip he made with a couple of friends through northern states last summer. He picked for his companions on his mythical journey two newspaper men in the audience, and told how they got into a dispute with the police in Philadelphia. The traffic officer told the driver of the car that he was on a one-way street, but the driver could not see where that made any difference—he was only going one way. As the clouds of misunderstanding thickened, the driver started to turn around, but was informed that neither could he do this, whereupon Mr. Dann's companions proved to the contrary, as he was riding in a popular priced vehicle. All came out well, as Mr. Dann said the police when he told them that they couldn't tell whether Carl Dann might be president of Philadelphia some day, or not. Mr. Dann was particular in emphasizing the numerous times his party stopped and "filled up."

"Too he had a word for Georgia before ending his extravaganza, and discovered that the Georgians were so confident that everybody was coming (Continued on Page Two)

FLORIDA IS A LAND OF REAL OPPORTUNITY SURROUNDED BY EMERALD SOUTHERN SEAS

CONGRESSMAN DRAKE GIVES A VIVID BUT TRULY CORRECT PICTURE OF THE HEALTH AND POSSIBILITIES OF A STATE SURROUNDED BY THE SOUTHERN SEAS AND CALLING TO THE WORLD TO COME AND ENJOY ITS RESOURCES

By Congressman H. J. Drake

Thomas R. Forsyth, a newspaper man of Washington, has prepared a remarkable interview with Congressman H. J. Drake, which has brought much favorable publicity to Florida. The article follows:

"Florida, where my home is at Lakeland, is a wonderful state of which I am proud," says Robert J. Drake, representative of the first congressional district. "The best way for me to describe the state is to quote the following description by a Southern writer:

"Florida is an emerald kingdom by the southern seas, fanned by zephyrs laden with scents from pine, kissed by passionate sunbeams tempered by the glorious Gulf Stream, watered by Letha's capricious fountains, decked with palm and pine, flower and fern, clothed in perpetual verdure and lapped in the gorgeous folds of the semi-tropical zone.

"Florida is a state of distances, of great stretches of open country, of shimmering lakes fringed with moss-draped trees, of deep blue seas whose rolling waves sound to the pulse-beat of the ages; of cities, of towns, of farms, of fruit groves and gardens."

"This vividly beautiful description will immediately play upon the imagination of the people who have never visited Florida, but when reasoning again holds sway in their minds they may ask: 'What has Florida to offer, besides its climate and beauty, as an inducement for people to go there and live? And has not the recent land boom, that apparently was a fiasco, injured the future prosperity of the state?'"

"Among the many inducements Florida has to offer is freedom from over taxation. There are no income-tax, inheritance tax, no tax on intangibles; nor any freakish taxations that perplex the mind, pinch the pocketbook and annoy those upon whom they may be levied in less favored states. In Florida there is practically only one tax, and that is a tax on real and personal property.

"Florida, as a state, has not a single dollar of indebtedness. On the first of January, 1927, there were about twelve million dollars in the state treasury with contents still coming in. Because of this superabundance of money in the treasury, the governor of the state, by executive order, reduced the tax rate 25 per cent, and has announced that he will order, during the next fiscal year, a still further reduction in taxation.

"As for jobs, there is no necessity for any man to go without employment in Florida. If he is willing to work, for there is a demand for men in the construction and improvement of highways, the construction of new railroad tracks and freight sheds and passenger stations, or improvements along the railway lines. The industrial building trades are always in need of labor. Employment can also be secured among the growers of fruit and farm products. If a man has some money saved up he can buy a small farm and be his own boss. He can raise fruits and vegetables, for which there is always a ready market.

"The best time to invest in Florida land is now. The chaff of wildcat speculation has blown away and the wheat remains. The valuable lands of Florida are still there. The excitement, amounting almost to a frenzy, stirred up by certain men who gained on making fortunes off of credulous people throughout the whole of the United States by offering bargains in Florida lands, which, perhaps, they had never seen, has died out and normal conditions are now prevailing in this state of sunshine and orange blossoms.

"A land boom, especially when carried on in a gigantic manner with over-estimation of returns to the purchasers and during financial panics, for the future that never can be carried out, is unhealthy for any section or state, while the boom lasts, for it creates artificial values that are sure to fall of realization, and those who are caught in the trap of the exploiters consider themselves the much abused victims of land sharks; and, probably, will have a bitter feeling towards that section, or state, and its people where they dropped their money into so-called 'safe investments' that proved to be only fascinating dreams of imagination which quickly disappeared under common sense and the realization that they had been 'stung'."

"The recent land boom that swept Florida was advertised, directly or indirectly, over the whole of the United States, and even in foreign countries. The people of the state, as a whole, deprecated the boom. They took but little part in it, and the thinking people of Florida had no sympathy in this effort of outsiders to exploit Florida."

"This land inflation did not originate in any congressional district, or along the west coast of the state, but when its influence began to be felt along the west coast, the inflation boom had commenced to subside over the entire state. Therefore any district probably suffered less than that section where the land boom started and commenced to swell to large proportions, in finally exploding when pricked by the sharp needle of common sense."

"So far as casual observation can be made, the evil effects of those hectic days of juggling prices for strips of Mother Earth have been swept away and normal conditions are now prevailing throughout this state upon which Mother Nature has smiled and made it the most desired place in the whole United States for people to live in, where peace, prosperity and plenty can always be found. 'Never by a pig in a poke' as an old saying is. A liberal interpretation of this old saying is: Never buy anything unless you can see it. This is the advice I would give people who want to buy land in Florida. When they see the land they will know what they are getting, and they can easily find out whether the price asked is more than what the land is really worth."

"There are people, including myself, who are beginning to realize that, after all, much good has come to Florida because of this land boom. It really is an ill wind that does not blow somebody good, and that some good did come to the state can be seen by the following statement:

"The millions of dollars that came into the state are still there. The great civic improvements are permanent and cannot be taken away. The railroad companies that were compelled to place an embargo on incoming and outgoing freight, except for oranges, during the hectic days of the land boom, since that time have double-tracked their roads where there were single tracks before."

"The Seaboard Air Line, within the present fiscal year, built 265 miles of new standard-gauge tracks, opening up a vast section that was not generally known to people outside the state. A large number of new ports of entry have been completed on the east and west coasts. The people of Florida are going ahead, in a systematic manner, to develop the state in every way possible."

"To give a slight idea of how the name of Florida has been spread abroad I can say that, during the so-called 'boom period,' my official duties caused me to travel about one-half around the globe, and frequently in the most obscure places intelligent people would give me with reverence concerning my states. I formed friendships with these people, and I am receiving almost daily letters from them, making inquiries concerning Florida, its growth, its climate and the productiveness of its soil."

"The future of Florida was never brighter than it is today. There is not another state in the Union that is so well known throughout the whole world as Florida, with its ideal climate, productive soil and advantageous location to become the year-around playground and rest-resort for the people of the United States. Florida is essentially a cosmopolitan state in that its people consist of citizens from other sections of the nation who have decided to live in this state of sunshine and beauty."

"Its financial condition is extraordinary good, and the state's wealth can easily be shown in the bank deposits which are greater than ever before, totaling approximately three hundred million dollars. This includes state banks, national banks and trust companies. The assessed valuation of all properties in the state is about six hundred million dollars, while the commercial value of all properties is estimated to be over three billion dollars."

"Taking fruit for example, Florida, during the year 1926-27, produced fifteen million boxes of citrus fruit, of which our own county, Polk produced over eight million boxes. This fruit is being marketed everywhere and is bringing in an enormous profit to the growers. This is only one time in the long list of fruits and other products the rich soil of the state brings forth."

"It needs to be said that the highways of Florida cannot be compared to those anywhere else in the world. The different sections of the state, and the extension of the highways into new regions is constantly going on. It will be but a question of a very short time when every section in the state will become a center of success, and this will mean a greater development of Florida, the state of beauty and golden opportunities to the progressive people who want to get out of the flotsam of struggling humanity."

"The Florida highways have been constructed in such a superior manner that they can be compared with the best thoroughfares of the leading cities of the country. These highways were built for speed as well as for safety. The speed limit is 45 miles an hour. Because of the smoothness in having long autoists become so enthused that numbers of them have been arrested for running up to a 60 or 65-mile clip an hour."

"The damage done by last September's storm, which was heralded in newspapers over the entire United States in daring headlines that might cause unthinking people to believe similar storms never happened in any other state, can now be hardly discernible. I, with a large congressional delegation, recently drove in automobiles through much of the storm-swept area, and comments were frequently made of how little the storm's destruction was visible."

"This storm swept across the extreme lower part of the state, and in passing over the Everglades the loss of life recorded was caused by the breaking of a dike. Crops are being raised on this land that was storm-swept and will bring in good financial returns to the growers."

"I wish to speak to complimentary terms of the chambers of commerce of Florida. We are all proud of these chambers for the reason that they are composed of honorable men of the highest business type, and any statements the chambers may give out for publication concerning the state and its future possibilities, can be banked on as being true and not gross exaggerations."

"Now what of Florida? Probably to the average person living outside of Florida the state is looked on as merely a winter resort where oranges grow and the climate is mild and soothing to shattered nerves. A more strip of land that was discovered on March 27, 1513, by Juan Ponce de Leon, a Spanish soldier, who had heard of a spring whose magic waters would bestow upon all mankind eternal youth. But Florida is more than a resting place; it is an active, producing state, both agriculturally and industrially."

"According to statistics compiled by Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture of Florida, over 50,000 cars of citrus fruit are shipped from the state annually, and also about 40,000 cars of water-grown vegetables. The 2,000,000 acres of timber in the state furnish 1,000,000,000 feet of lumber per year. The timber yields 8,000,000 barrels of turpentine and 500,000 barrels of rosin. Florida has the largest acreage of tung oil trees."

"The value of the yield from Florida's phosphate mines is estimated at about $20,000,000 annually, and there are in reserve over 200,000,000 tons of phosphate. The value of the fuller's-earth production is estimated at about $2,000,000 per year. Over $200,000,000 are invested in the manufacturing of Florida. The largest sponge industry in America is located at Tarpon Springs on the west coast. There are approximately 600,000,000 cigars made in Florida annually, and 8,000,000 cigarettes. There is a factory making paper from saw grass."

"There are only a few of the different kinds of industries being carried on in Florida, thus shattering the pieces of the old joke that the natives of Florida live on vegetables during the summer months and on vitamins during the winter season. The best way is to learn the real truth about Florida is to visit the state and see what is going on there."

"To Representative Drake can be given the distinction of being the father of the first male child born within the corporate limits of Lakeland. This son's name was Olan Wright Drake, born April 25, 1924. He served in the U. S. army during the world war as a brave soldier, returning to his native town shattered in health, and never recovered, passing the great divide on December 29, 1922. He was held in such high esteem by those who knew him that the artillery field established near Lakeland was named after him. The honor bestowed upon his memory came from the American Legion that, as one mind, requested of his family the authority to 'name the field after their beloved comrade, the late Olan Wright Drake.'" to Florida to stay, at least all this winter, that they were now engaged in building only the west side of all through roads to this state. Next summer, he said, the Georgia road builders told him, would be ample time to go to work on the return or east side of these roads. He doubted that even then they would undertake the work."

After keeping his audience in an uproar for 15 minutes, Mr. Dann reverted to the material, first saying that he had to even "talk about the boom, as he was stung," and make his road—and he never got mad."

Nevertheless, he said stoutly, laying the burden for the whole force at the doors of northern and western business, who never tried to create a boom unless they knew they had something to build it on. Hence, he said, they chose Florida as the scene of a great gamblers' convention, and came very near exhausting the state's timber supply by cutting down the trees for lot stakes. They started it, he said, and sold out to school teachers and other folks back home in the north and west."

It was a good thing, he said however, because it taught the people that there was something else worth while here after all. The building and sound development that has gone on and still is progressing are a guarantee of lasting values in Florida and no one need have any fear, if he will go on and produce. He gave a striking illustration of its building and farming resources."

Florida suffered its severest calamity in 1905, he declared, following the great freeze. Everything was wiped out then, because people didn't know how to raise anything except oranges, and with the exception of a few cows in Ocala county, there was nothing left for the people to eat or sell and get money enough to buy something to eat. He himself went through this racking period and drew a pertinent and touching picture of the pitiful conditions that prevailed."

"Florida didn't give up then," he exclaimed, "but it caused her to take stock of her great resources, and she came back."

"And now," he continued, "there is nothing on earth that can stop us. Why, instead of growing oranges only as we did in 1904, Florida today produces more than ten per cent of the fresh vegetables consumed in the United States, not to mention her exports. No, sir, folks, you simply can't stop Florida."

"Our natural wealth is discovered, our future is established on the proper application of this wealth, and all we have to do is to buckle up and pull together so we can go on telling the world that Florida is the greatest place to spend the winter on earth. He cited the fact that from a geographical position, Florida was at the very doorway of 80 per cent of the wealth and population of the United States. To Florida it is only a question of hours from the north, the east and the west. 'To California it is days; and in any event, he said, there is but one Florida and but one California. Here he took occasion to speak a good word for California, stating that he had never dejected one section to the glory of another, and it had been his policy over many years of real estate development here in his native state."

He referred only briefly to his widely advertised Mount Plymouth properties, out of propriety, he said, but stated that it was a great central community proposition, being built on the community plan—that it was as much of one of thirty cities centering in it as it was another, and that it was no "one man's" undertaking."

He sold his claims were borne out last summer when he went to Philadelphia and with his associates raised a million dollars in 64 hours with which to build the first unit of a complete four-unit golf course there. "That shows you, too," he declared, "that Florida is not damaged in the eyes of those who are big enough and broad enough to understand basic conditions."

He said that the cities of Florida would profit through paying greater attention to the building and upkeep of first class golf courses, and declared that if St. Cloud would undertake the construction of a municipal golf course he would see to it that the city received the services of one of the greatest golf experts probably in the world in locating their grounds and laying out plans of construction."

Five billion dollars, he said, are being spent annually on golf courses in the United States, and that there are at this time 2,800 good golf clubs in this country."

There are, he further stated, seven million golf players in the United States, twenty-eight thousand of whom play in Florida. By building and maintaining the best possible courses here in the state he could not see why we should not enjoy increasing thousands coming to play with us each winter at least."

Mr. Dann was accompanied to St. Cloud by several members of his staff, all of whom were outspoken with Mr. Dann in praise of the splendid reception tendered the party."

This Is How the Money Goes

In the language of the HOUSE, they call them "crews." The HOUSE is that manufacturer or jobber who, nine times out of ten, is dealing in inferior merchandise—shoddy materials—poorly made—and sold under questionable tactics, misrepresentation—and shady dealings. The crew is usually made up of misfits, glib talkers—long promises and the criminally inclined who hate honest labor. The idea is to take shoddy merchandise into thriving communities and by "high pressure" tactics, take the money AWAY.

We have seen them leaving St. Cloud on more than one occasion, the crew boss and his gang—not one of which very many of us would invite into our homes—and trust them there. Breezing out of town—to the next city—we must seem awfully dumb and easy to them—as they divide the swag—a hundred, or two or three hundred dollars of our good money.

Compare this crowd with the merchants of St. Cloud. Which would you call on, expecting help, in time of trouble? You need not answer. We think we know. Likewise the mail order house which sends its bulky catalogue into this territory. How much CITY, County or State TAX does it pay? How much does it contribute to the upbuilding of this city and territory? Answer yourself a few of these questions—and we think you will add your mite to those of our loyal citizens who practice loyalty by supporting home stores, industries and institutions, and, who find that just as good merchandise at just as low prices, with just as wide a range of selection is to be had right here AT HOME.

The Editor.

COMMISSIONERS HAD RATHER ROUTINE MEETING

All members of the board of county commissioners were present at the meeting Monday, together with Clerk J. L. Overstreet and Attorney Ellis F. Davis. No unusual business matters were on hand, and the crowd of spectators were conspicuous by their absence, a condition that has not prevailed for many meetings.

After the minutes of previous meetings were read, the matter of releasing Steel & Son on a bond given some months ago for road work, was taken up, and the contractor having complied with all terms of the contract, and having had estimates of the engineer, the said bond was by resolution released.

An order from the contractors to pay the Florida National Bank $45,000 out of moneys due the contractor, when such funds are available out of the sale of the $175,000 bond issue now on appeal litigation in the supreme court, was accepted and placed on record. It was pointed out that acceptance of this order did not obligate the county in the bank other than from funds derived from the bonds when the litigation is ended.

The matter of carrying liability insurance for all county employees was discussed, the county having secured certain road employees with this protection some months ago. A claim for injuries sustained while in performance of duty on road graded work is to be made for John Houson, who was injured last week.

The matter of expending remaining funds in road district No. 3 was left to the discretion of Commissioner Ames, in whose district the roads are located covered by the special road district.

An offer was received from taxpayers in the eastern part of the county to put the road from Tyson Creek to Deer Park in passable condition for $200.

After some discussion, the board agreed to pay McDonald & Burghess Co. the freight on road machinery sent to Kenansville, which was not purchased after tests, as part reimbursement for the company's trouble, the company to give the county a full refund for any other claims arising out of this deal.

The board ordered the application of J. W. Britt of Klamathine for entrance to the vocational school for cripples, which is to be operated under an act of the recent legislature. The location of the school has not been announced.

A committee of the board was appointed to confer with Mr. Richard on Alligator Lake about a right of way for state road No. 24, which passes through the property occupied by Mr. Richards. This committee reports reaching an agreement yesterday with Mr. Richards.

Checks were issued for all current bills, which had been audited and approved at the special meeting last Friday.

Five other routine matters were disposed of before adjournment in the afternoon.

WHO'S WHO IN LOCAL DEADEND

By Phil
South Massachusetts avenue is now populated by the return of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond V. Supp to their former place of residence, which it was before October the first. Their neighbors are glad to have them back.

Miss Ruby Padgett was in Klamathine last Sunday, indulging with her friends and relatives.

Mr. Albert Holloway returned to Orlando last Sunday evening after a few hours' visit with friends in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Alexander and children, of Orlando, spent Sunday in this city and while here were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Supp.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley E. Goetz stopped here over Friday night with the writer and his family and left Saturday morning for their home in Miami. They had been visiting with friends in St. Petersburg the past two weeks.

The Mission has revised its monthly service schedule and will conduct a service for the deaf at Lakeland on November 6th, coinciding the second and last part of the sermon on the Feast of Belshazzar that was preached in Auburndale on October the second.

Mrs. Henry Deavers, of Dayton, Ohio, who spent four months last year in California, is now touring in Florida this winter, with a view to making comparisons between these nationally known ocean resorts. Being desirous of seeking more countries to conquer, her wish is gratified by her trip into this state. Having an aptitude for observing conditions and resources at close range, she expressed amazement at the absence of mountain scenery, but much delight in noting that nature has favored Florida with an unsurpassed year-round climate, something California can never hope to boast of. Mrs. Deavers is enjoying every minute of her visit in the land of sunshine, and during her stay in the state she will be the guest of her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Goetz, whose home is in Miami. Last Friday she spent over night in this city en route to the Magic City.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Austin spent Sunday evening with the Philipotts before returning to Orlando. Mrs. Austin entertained the company with silent music in an admirable manner.

Commenting on the sermon and song services, the following article by the Auburndale News of October 7th is reproduced below:

"One of the most solemn services ever witnessed in Auburndale was the one at the Methodist church last Sunday afternoon when Frank E. Philipott, superintendent of the Florida Mission for the Deaf, delivered a sermon, the Belshazzar's Feast, in the sign language of the deaf. Signs, darts and trills, also, were delivered in the same manner. Mr. Philipott's charming daughter acting as interpreter in the song service only. 'Nearer My God, To Thee,' 'Thru Out The Life Line,' and 'The Old Ragged Cross' were all quite interesting, even to those in the congregation who could not understand the sign language of the preacher."

"Nearly thirty deaf people from various neighboring cities were present and all enjoyed a pleasant social hour after the benediction, and it was quite interesting to watch these silent people with a smile of happiness on every face, chatting and laughing with each other, and we were brought all the more face to face with the fact that after all happiness is merely a matter of making the best of whatever condition we are thrown in. Truly was it evident that even those people who were enjoying life and showed expressions of more real pleasure than many people not thus handicapped. Mr. Philipott has headquarters at St. Cloud and we trust that he and his happy band of silent listeners will let us have the pleasure of another one of their most interesting services."

Too Often This Warns of Sluggish Kidney Action.

LAME? STIFF? ACHY? Sure your kidneys are working right? Sluggish kidneys allow waste poisons to remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with often dull headaches, dizziness and nagging backache. That the kidneys are not acting right is often shown by scanty or burning secretions. If you have reason to believe your kidneys are acting sluggishly, use Doan's Pills. Doan's stimulates the kidneys and thus assist in eliminating waste impurities. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor.

OCTOBER WEATHER IN FLORIDA

By Alexander J. Mitchell
(Jacksonville Journal)

October, like April, is a period of weather transition. The sun, the chief source of weather control, crossed the celestial equator at 8 p. m. September 23, in his march southward, and the thermal tendency over middle latitudes is progressively downward with diminishing precipitation over lower latitudes of the continental United States. It is the beginning of the seasonal shift of wind circulation. The high pressure belt of the middle Atlantic gradually lowers its center, and the continental "high" of winter is increasingly felt as the season advances, replacing the summer "low" of the interior.

It is true that the untempered judge climate entirely by latitude. They ignore the effects of topography, elevation above sea level, ocean currents, prevailing winds, and other factors of less importance. Heat, as they see it, begins at the equator and ends at the poles, and as Florida is nearer the former than the latter it, a priori, must needs be the scene of physical discomfort.

Obviously our latitude evidences long summers but the conventional rains which feature the season are potential sources of comfort; and ere the sun crosses the celestial equator falling temperatures, relatively, ensue.

The monthly precipitation, which has increased uniformly since April, shows a marked contrast when compared with the rainfall of months immediately preceding, save the lower southeast where the influence of tropical disturbances is still reflected, October being the period of major rainfall over a limited area implying on the coast.

As a whole, however, October is the advent of a higher percentage of sunshine, decreasing relative humidity, more frequent westerly winds and lower temperatures, with incidental light frosts over the extreme west in about one year in three.

Although the mean temperature for October is 73 degrees, the high average being sustained by the summer-like records which still obtain over the south and south-central districts, there have been minimum temperatures as low as 25 degrees, over the western interior districts. The following are the records of temperature and rainfall in the state during October since 1891, the year that the climatological service was established:

Temperature

The warmest October, 79.2 degrees, in 1919; the coolest, 69.7 degrees, in 1906. The highest temperature, 109 degrees, in 1904; the lowest temperature, 25 degrees, in 1927.

It may be illuminating to some to know the degree of cold to which their plants and flowers should not be subjected. Some of these experiments, by the U. S. department of agriculture, were not made in the open air, but they are, nevertheless, valuable.

Orange lily petals freeze between 27 and 28 degrees; rose and peony leaves freeze between 24 and 25 degrees; peony petals and Easter lily leaves, between 20 and 30 degrees, and rose petals between 30 and 31 degrees. Orange trees at about 28 degrees, and strawberries at 23.5 degrees. The freezing point may be considered only as danger points at or near which there is a possibility of injury if exposed for a sufficient length of time. Precautions during October, however, are rarely required.

Rainfall

The average rainfall during October for the same period, was 4.34 inches. The greatest average rainfall during October was 19.82 inches in 1924; the least average rainfall during the same period was 1.57 inches in 1907. The greatest 24-hour amount at an individual station, 23.22 inches in 1924, and the greatest monthly amount that ever occurred during October, was 36.08 inches in 1924.

The geographical location of Florida is adjacent to, or within the tract of, those disturbances which originate in the doldrums—the region of frequent rains and continued heat of lower latitudes, and whence come the cyclones or hurricanes of the tropic. They are most frequent during August and September, but were little less so in October during recent years; they are altogether exceptional during November.

Such storms are sometimes referred to as "Florida's hurricanes"—a gratuitous statement, little less applicable to New York than to Florida, save only that the latter happens to be nearer the belt of origin.

As April notes the passing of winter—a term used relatively in this latitude, and its vagaries; so does October bring the assurance of the near approach of brighter days and stimulating temperatures; and under that impulse life holds a new promise for all. The "open door" is a reality. The products of field and grove supply the essentials of vigorous health, and the waters, woodland, and sunshine make complete the happiness of the outdoor life.

BEAUTY A TOWN'S ASSET

In spite of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live, it is evident to any observer that the American people are rapidly developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is not confined to the weathered classes, but extends to the great masses in the towns and villages and in the rural districts.

New towns and new sections of the older ones are being laid out with wider streets, with provision for provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally.

New houses show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net results of all these modern developments is beauty. And aside from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, it pays in dollars and cents.

Beautiful cities, towns and villages attract people. They attract permanent residents, they attract tourists and they attract trade. It is natural that a person selecting a trading center will choose a town that is beautiful and clean in preference to one that is unsightly and dirty, if other conditions are anywhere near equal.

Therefore, it behooves the authorities of any community, as well as each individual citizen, to make the most of their opportunities for improving the appearance of the place in which they live. Beauty and cleanliness are a town's best assets.—Key West Citizen.

PLAYERS IN A NEW PLAY COMING TO G. A. R. HALL

The third program of the St. Cloud players, "The Girl and the Tramp," will be given two home performances, one on Saturday night, October 15th, and the other on Tuesday night, October 18th, both at the G. A. R. Theatre. The play, to be given under the auspices of the American Legion, is a lighter, deeper and heavier one than either of the two already presented and bids fair to set a new mark in South Florida community play production.

Colin Parker comes into the cast with this production and will be seen in a most difficult role, matching wits with the tramp in scene after scene, and in a diamond-cut diamond, while Miss Carol Henry is working hard and promises a finished portrayal of "the girl." Miss Florence Ross will appear in a splendidly ingenious creation, with Mrs. Triplett as the mother. The banker, a worthy character, has been entrusted to Emmet Becker; Floyd Davidson is cast as the juvenile and Mr. Lennox Trickle as the sheriff. Mr. Triplett is afforded broad opportunities as the tramp, a man of noble heart, by circumstances forced to play the buffoon; a character study of light and shade, worthy of great talent.

Mr. Triplett is very fond of the role and has played the part more than one thousand times.

EAT MORE ORANGES AND YOU WILL BE STRONGER

Properties contained in oranges give to the human body vitamins and good food values, and "make for strength, endurance, firm muscles, a clear mind and a bright eye," according to Dr. Herman N. Braden, commissioner of health of Chicago.

In a statement received at the United States Public Health Service, and just made public, Dr. Braden stated that oranges in the daily diet increase the appetite, assist nutrition, regulate the body and generally aid in "winning that priceless possession—good health."

The full text of the statement follows: An orange a day will do more than keep the doctor away. It will help the doctor away. It will help to give positive health.

Oranges in the daily diet increase the appetite, assist nutrition, regulate the body, and generally aid in winning that priceless possession—good health. Good health is not merely avoiding sickness. Good health is positive vigor and well-being.

ST. CLOUD PLAYERS DELIGHT SPECTACULAR AUDIENCE IN HOLOPAW

The first away-from-home performance of the St. Cloud players was presented at the auditorium in Holopaw, Friday night of last week, with "Going Straight" as the play.

A most enthusiastic audience greeted the Thespians and after the presentation the Holopaw folks were effusive in their praise of play and players, with the next results of then and there offering an arrangement that calls for "The Girl and the Tramp" to be given in the hospitable town shortly after the St. Cloud presentation.

The players report a most enjoyable trip and are eagerly awaiting the second visit.

Government pamphlets, advise the use of orange juice.

Oranges give vitamins and good food values; they make for strength, firm muscles, endurance, a clear mind and a bright eye. In spite of what is commonly believed, oranges are food for an "acid condition" of the blood. Orange juice is a mild laxative, is not "fattening" and is a good between-meal drink. Therefore, I recommend the orange and its juice for health.—United States Daily.

LOOK AT THE STARS COMING TO THE PALM THEATRE

"Show-Off" Comedians Analyzes and Classifies Various Kinds of Laughs

Laughter, the highest expression of human emotion, is a profound psychological subject, and the business of exciting laughs is quite a serious one.

No sixth Ford Stearns, screen comic par excellence, who will be at the Palm next Thursday and Friday, with his amusing interpretation of the life role in "The Show-Off," Met. St. Clair's film version of George Kelly's stage success.

"Yet, despite its importance," continued Stearns earnestly, "there has been little effort to classify or catalogue the various kinds of laughs."

THE STOLEN RANCH

Universal has out-done itself in "The Stolen Ranch," a Blue Streak Western, at the Palm Theatre, Saturday. This is a story that will stir the blood of the most cautious and blasé critics and settle once and for all the fact that our great West is as romantic and interesting as any of the countries abroad.

William Wyler, who directed this unique photoplay, rang the bell when he made "The Stolen Ranch." This young director seems to possess a knack of capturing for the screen the finest shadings and nuances of feelings against the impressive, awesome background of our Westland.

because it is the final day's engagement of this thoroughly entertaining FBO picture starring Viola Dana.

There are several contributing reasons to the genuine worth of this picture, chief of which is the story, an original by Maude Fulton who wrote "The Heat" for stage and screen, "The Hounding Bird" in which Gloria Swanson is credited with her greatest cinematic success; the excellent work of Viola Dana, the star, and the faultless direction of Phil Rosen the man who won national fame by his direction of "Abraham Lincoln."

A supporting cast which may be well called all star adds to the general excellence, with Parks Jones, Kyville Alderson and Fay Holderness outstanding.

P. T. A. MEETING WAS FULL OF ACTION MONDAY NIGHT

The Parent-Teacher Association met at the Vermont avenue building Monday evening with a good attendance. The time of meeting was changed to 7:30.

Mrs. Long and Mrs. Lefloy Lackey were appointed an auditing committee to check the books of the lunch room department and report at the next meeting. This department provides an appetizing and substantial mid day meal for the children for the small sum of ten cents.

On Friday evening, October 21, an entertainment will be held at the Senior high school auditorium. Miss Steinhilber of Kissimmee, a reader of ability, and a vocalist, will make this an evening of enjoyment to all and it is hoped many will be present.

Monday night's program was furnished by the W. C. T. U. who held a school session on the commodious stage. About 15 scholars whose ages were more than 10 and less than 16, under the leadership of Mrs. L. M. Packer who made an able school teacher, recited lessons relating to Christian citizenship. The attention of the audience was closely held throughout the session.

On Monday evening, October 24, everybody and their relations and their friends are invited to the Parent-Teachers Association Halloween party at the High school auditorium. This is to take the form of a Hard Times Follies. The gentlemen wearing neckties will be fined, as also will be the ladies wearing silk dresses. Bring sandwiches for your family and something in a covered dish. If convenient wear a mask. If not come anyway, as this is one of the events of the season.

A number of the P. T. A. members are planning to attend the district P. T. A. meeting at Orlando Friday of this week.

DANIEL E. PROPER DIED AT MELBOURNE

Friends here will regret to learn of the death at Melbourne on October 7, of Daniel E. Proper, for a number of years a resident of St. Cloud. The deceased had made Melbourne his home for the past seven years.

Mr. Proper had been ill for several weeks, and while his death was not unexpected, still it was a great shock to his wide host of friends and relatives. He was born in Kingston, N. Y., 56 years ago but moved to St. Cloud a few years after the city was founded, where he made many friends. Upon moving to Melbourne he entered the real estate business and there likewise enjoyed a large number of friends.

Funeral services were held from the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Rev. S. V. Coffield officiating, following which the body was laid to rest in the Melbourne cemetery.

NOW'S THE TIME TO PLANT

R. A. Crawford has an ample supply of plants for many gardens and truckers in the community, including tomatoes, Ruby King peppers and Black Beauty egg plants.

These are now ready for transplanting and Mr. Crawford is ready to make deliveries at his location on North Minnesota avenue between 5th and 6th streets.

HOLOPAW BOXING SATURDAY

Thirty rounds of boxing and slugging are carded for Holopaw Saturday evening, the main event being a ten round bout between Battling Dave of Holopaw and Kid Willie of Vero Beach. They are light heavy weights.

Special seats have been provided for whites and popular prices will prevail, it is said.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Ivor G. Hyndman, Minister

Sunday evening the pastor will speak upon the topic "Should the Church Unite?" The question has been agitated for years but has never been so widely discussed as in the years following the World War. The silent man is on tip-toe whenever there is a gathering like that of the Lutheran Conference, looking to the uniting of the ranks of Christendom. The young people of today speak out unhesitatingly upon the subject heedless of the condemnations of the conservative sectarians. The public is invited to hear Dr. Hyndman's address on this subject.

Morning and evening services will be held at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. respectively. There will be special music at each service.

A new class in the Sunday school has been organized to take care of young people who are above high school age. The class will meet regularly at the usual Sunday school hour for class instruction and will hold weekly meetings every Monday evening in connection with the newly formed Young People's club. Membership in the club will be open to all young people who are connected with the Sunday school in anyway.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies Aid this week, Mrs. Knoll was elected president.

The Unity Circle of the Aid, Mrs. Blackman, president, will hold Banquet at the church parlors on Wednesday, November 10th. The Senior Circle and the Livingston club have arranged to co-operate.

The Senior Circle will hold a chicken dinner on November 1st.

MICHIGANDERS MEET

About thirty happy Michiganders met on Wednesday of last week for the last picnic of the summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bullard. Eight soldiers were present and their combined ages were 674 years with an average of 84 and one-fourth years. After listening to several pieces of music on the violin by Mr. Abbott and his son, a little time was spent in song and a volunteer program.

Mr. Goff and Mr. Bullard sang "Michigan, My Michigan," the audience joining with them, and "We Are the Boys, the Old Army Boys."

Mrs. Riley, "The Remedy." Reading, Mr. Goff, "A Toven That Has Nothing To Do In A Public Way Is On Its Way to the Cemetery."

Reading, Mrs. Bullard, "A Reminder That's Id Ago Has Nothing To Do With It."

Reading, Miss Loomis, "Just Bristle Up and Grit Your Teeth and Keep Up On Keeping On."

Song, Mrs. Cooley, "And Sister Crys For Bread."

Mrs. Riley told of a circumstance which she knew over 50 years ago of to death on the bank of Walled Lake a man who was a drinker was from.

LADIES IMPROVEMENT CLUB

The Ladies Improvement club held its first regular meeting of the season at the library on October 5, a fair number of members and visitors being present.

The new programs were distributed and much praise was given to the chairman, Mrs. Dingley, for her work and the beauty of the booklet.

After the usual business was disposed of the chair turned the meeting over to the W. C. T. U. which conducted a school in citizenship. It was both interesting and instructive. Mrs. Beneshet, the teacher, had her pupils well drilled in their lessons.

The library is now open to the public each afternoon and evening, with the exception of Wednesday afternoons, which time is reserved for club work. Hours 1:00 to 5:00 p. m. and 7:00 to 9:00 p. m.

The next meeting will be held on October 19 and will be a political meeting in charge of Mrs. Roy Lackey, the roll call, state officers and salary. Everyone is welcome to our meetings.

McCorkle and Ryan have a splendid reputation as automobile mechanics, with knowledge of the intricacies of all makes of cars.

Mr. Stalnaker said that in securing them he felt that he would be in better shape than ever to take care for all work in the Hudson-Esser line. His implicit confidence in these men was exemplified when he said he would personally back any job they turned out.

This is considered wonderful opportunity for the school children of Oneonta county to learn to swim without cost. Anyone else who is not attending school can learn to swim at a small cost. Prof. Davis says he can teach anyone to swim in three lessons or their money will be refunded.

Everyone knows that every child on earth should be taught how to swim as early as it is possible to do so.

NEW YOUNG PEOPLE'S CLUB ORGANIZED

A group of young people met at the Methodist church parlors on Wednesday evening to organize a young people's club. Arrangements were made to have meetings each week with a varied program covering devotional, literary, musical, missionary, social and recreational activities.

Membership in the club will be open to all young people connected with the Sunday school as officers, teachers or students.

In connection with the club there will be a special Sunday school class with the executive officers identical with the club, but with department heads to be elected from the entire club membership. Next Monday evening in the church annex there will be a meeting for the purpose of electing officers, approving by-laws, and registration of charter members.

At the close of the session Wednesday evening, refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Ivar G. Hyndman, assisted by Misses Helen Philpott and Eunice Ross.

Mrs. Idella Frakes, of Webster City, Iowa, arrived in St. Cloud last Saturday, being called here by the serious illness of her father, William Koch. While in the city she will visit at the homes of her sisters, Mrs. H. I. Byrnes and Mrs. Mary Larsen.

Has your flock been chilled yet? If not, it is time to begin making arrangements for this important task. Ask the County Agent to give you information on culling. He will be glad to do it.

PERFECT ALIBI

There was a third knock at the door. "If you please, kind lady," said the beggar, "I've lost my right leg."

"Well, it ain't here!" retorted the woman of the house as she slammed the door.—Nash Journal.

If you imagine that this is a cold, unimpassioned world, tell people that you have a cold and listen to their suggestions.

Our Practical Pattern No. 1225

Smartness and simplicity are the keynotes of this new fall frock, which is suitable for either sports or street wear. The vestee effect on the blouse and the smartly pleated skirt are features easily carried out.

For best results, we advise a fall sports material, such as jersey, kasha, wool crepe or one of the new soft tweeds. All of these would be decidedly good-looking in the new fall shades of beige, brown, gray or even the dark reds or blues. However, in black satin or faille silk, with a white flower and patent leather belt this style is stunning.

No dressmaking experience is needed to make this design. A perfect fit in every size is guaranteed. May be obtained in sizes 16 to 44. Size 36 requires 2 1/2 yards of 54 inch material. Patterns will be delivered to any address upon receipt of 25c in cash or U. S. Postage. Always mention size wanted. Address Pattern Dept., this newspaper.

Eat Tomatoes For Health

RECENT discovery of the new vitamin E in tomatoes has again placed the spotlight on this popular food. Studies lately made at Johns Hopkins University have shown that vitamin E assists the red blood cells in absorbing iron from foods. This iron is necessary in the blood because it helps to carry the oxygen from the lungs to every part of the body.

Dr. Karl Kowarsky, of Chicago, has used this new knowledge in the dietary treatment of pernicious anemia. He names tomatoes as among "those foods of greatest value in this new treatment, containing both iron and vitamin E."

Tomatoes are also known to be rich in vitamins A, B, and C. From vitamin C, tomatoes gain their antiscorbutic properties. Owing to the acid nature of tomatoes the canned product retains its vitamins and health properties excellently. Dr. A. F. Hess of Columbia University, says: "Canned tomatoes are the most serviceable antiscorbutic for artificially fed infants. From the nutritional standpoint it may be regarded as a palatable solution of the three vitamins and should be fed to such infants at the rate of 30 grams per day."

Weight for weight tomatoes, raw or canned, rank with lettuce and green string beans as sources of vitamins A and B, and with oranges and lemons as sources of vitamin C. In fact, they contain more vitamins per pound than any other canned food and more than any food except fresh milk. At the present time, they retail at an average of less than eight cents per pound of contents. No other food that is comparable in therapeutic, dietetical value can be bought for eight cents per pound.

DEALING IN WALRUS WHISKERS ONE OF QUEEREST TRADES

In New York's Wall street district, is a woman who makes her living extracting walrus whiskers and other foreign bodies from the eyes of pedestrians and motorists on windy days. She is known as "Cinderella," patrols her "beats" regularly and leaves the amount of her fee to the patients. One of the queerest occupations shown by census reports is that of a man in the state of Washington who buys walrus whiskers and sells them to the proprietors of Chinese restaurants for toothpicks. Another man is employed in parking houses to smell lame. He can quickly determine by the odor if they have soured around the bone in the process of curing. A family of three, mother, father and child, makes a comfortable living as models. They pose in the shop windows to display the latest styles, while the daughter's role is to openly admire her parent's costumes. Teaching parrots to talk is the occupation of one man who conducts his "classroom" in a series of soundproof rooms. Making upholstered dolls' furniture, collecting sea shells for jewelry and other ornaments and fashioning caricature dolls from dried apples, are other queer callings discovered by the census takers.

Chapter I

MRS. HOWARD FEATHERSTONE spent much time thinking up things for her brother, Archibald Bennett, to do and as Archie was the ideal bachelor brother, he accepted her commissions in the most amiable spirit and his services were unflinchingly satisfactory.

"The agent who's been looking up a summer house for us says this is an unusual opportunity, as there are a few places to be let at Bailey Harbor and this one is unexpectedly on the market. Howard's simply swamped with work and we'd all appreciate it if you could run up there for us."

The many preoccupations of his brother-in-law, who held a seat in Congress and took his job seriously, were well known to Archie and as Archie had nothing on earth to do, it was evidently fitting that he should assume some of Featherstone's domestic burdens. Archie had planned to leave for the Canadian Rockies two days later, but he obligingly agreed to take a look at the Bailey Harbor house that had been placed so providentially within reach of his sister.

"The owner belongs to that old New England Congdon family," Mrs. Featherstone explained. "they date from the beginning of time, and some of them are a little eccentric."

"If you're visiting a house from that family it's just as well to look into it carefully. All right, May, I'll inspect the premises for you."

Archie was already mentally planning the details of this trip with his customary exactness. He traveled constantly in the interests of his health and knew train schedules by heart.

Archie's condition was always a grateful topic of conversation and now Mrs. Featherstone, in her most sisterly tone, broached the subject of his health.

"I haven't much faith in this idea of your going to the Rockies; you know you tried the Alps five years ago and the altitude nearly killed you."

Archie smiled wearily. "I seem doomed to sit on the sidelines and watch the game," he agreed gloomily.

To look at him no one would believe that he had a nerve in his tall frame. Once a friend married him off to a farm where an autocratic athletic trainer rejuvenated tired business men, and Archie survived the heroic treatment and reappeared bronzed and hardened and feeling better than he ever had felt in his life. But after a winter spent in an office and leisure to think of himself as an invalid, he renewed his acquaintance with the waiting rooms of specialists.

"There will be a few people in for dinner tonight," remarked Mrs. Featherstone as he rose to go. "very simple, you know; and Howard just telephoned that he can't possibly come, so if you can arrange it, Archie—it will be a real help to me."

"All right, May, I was going to have dinner with Weld and Coburn, but if you really want me—"

"Oh, that's perfectly fine of you, Archie! And I must say you're a real help! You know she's the dearest girl; and I always thought you really did like her. Her father lost all his money before he died and she's had a real hard time making a splendid success of it."

When he found himself sitting beside her later at Mrs. Featherstone's table she said to him:

"I passed you on the street the other day and made frantic efforts to attract your attention, but you were in a trance and failed to see my signals."

"I was taking my walk," he stammered.

"My walk?" she repeated. "You speak as though you had a monopoly of that form of exercise. I must say you didn't appear to be enjoying yourself. Your aspect was wholly funeral and your demeanor that of a man with a certain number of miles wished on him."

"Four a day," Archie confessed, with an air of resignation. "Two in the morning and two before dinner. By the doctor's orders," he added with the wistful smile that usually evoked sympathetic undertones in feminine auditors.

"Oh, the doctors!" remarked the girl as though she had no great opinion of doctors in general or of Mr. Bennett's medical advisers in particular. He was used to a great deal of sympathy and he was convinced that Miss Perry was an utterly unprejudiced person.

"What would you call a good walk?" he asked a little faintly.

"Oh, ten, twenty, thirty? I've done fifteen and gone to a dance at the end of the tramp."

"But you haven't my handicap," he protested defensively. "You can't be very far about walking when you're wearing that excessive fatigue may have disastrous consequences!"

She was not wholly without feeling for her face grew grave for a moment and she met his eyes searchingly, with something of the professional certainty to which he had long been accustomed.

"Eyes clear, color very good; voice a trifle weak and suggesting timidity and feeble initiative. Introverted; a little self-conscious, and unduly nervous symptoms indicated by the rolling of broad cranium."

"The paid doctors have been far better to me than you," he said. "I wish you would write those items. Your case interests me and I'll consider this matter of advising you."

"I shall expect the document tomorrow afternoon."

"You're a tremendously formal person, Mr. Bennett. What you really need is a good hard jar. Every morning you know exactly what you're going to do every hour of the day. It's routine that kills. Suppose you were to hold a bank messenger in Wall Street and ship with a safekeeping of negotiable securities and then, after the papers were through regarding the police to their inefficiency you would drive up to the bank in a taxi, walk in and return the money, saying you had found it in the old family pew at Trinity when you went in to say your prayers! Here would be an opportunity to break the force of habit and awaken your self-confidence."

"Am I to understand that you practice what you preach? I don't seem to be impertinent, but really—"

"Oh, I'm perfectly capable of doing anything I've suggested. I mean to dig for buried treasure this summer, rattling the dream of a lifetime. Talk about romance being dead! My grandfather was a planter in Mississippi before the Civil War. In about 1890 he saw trouble ahead, and as he was opposed to secession he turned everything he had into gold, bought several tracts of land in Michigan and New York and secretly planted his money. My father inherited the land, and that's where I'm opening my camp."

"And the gold hasn't been found?" asked Archie, deeply interested.

"Not a coin so far! You see grandfather made his will in war time and only divided the land, being afraid to mention the buried treasure in a document that would become a public record when he died."

"This is most exciting. It's only unfortunate that it's not possible to give you to your enterprise."

"Oh, the points in the story is a comedy of misadventure, who inherited the land up near the St. Lawrence and has it all over it without results. My father gave the Michigan scenery to me, but this cousin of mine has been digging on my land, most unwarrantably! He's rather a dashing young person."

When it came time for Archie to say goodnight to her hostess, Bennett was hovering near to offer his services in sailing her car.

"Nothing like that for me! But—gravity," if you're not afraid of the night air or the excessive fatigue, you might take me home. That will add a mile to your prescription but you can ride back."

She spoke of her plans for the summer with charming candor as they sat off at a taxi cab.

Archie was enthusiastic about the summer camp; if it succeeded she meant to conduct an outdoor school for girls, moving it from Michigan to Florida with the changing seasons.

There was no question of her making a success of it, he said, marveling at her vitality, her exuberance, the confidence with which she viewed the future.

"I wish you all good luck," he said when they reached the house of the friend she was visiting. "The camp will be a great success—I'm sure of that. This has been the happiest evening I've spent since—"

"Since you began taking everything so hard! Please quit looking on your life as a burden; try to get some fun out of it!"

"Don't forget me in the rush of things! And particularly don't forget that note of instructions, I'm counting on that. If I don't get it I will be terribly disappointed."

He surveyed him gravely, then answered lightly. "Oh, very well! You shall have it, sir!"

Chapter II

Archie didn't know that the note missed looked a great deal of trouble. She must write a note that would not require an answer; this she felt to be imperatively demanded by the circumstance. She thought Archibald Bennett a nice fellow and she was sorry for him, but no more and no less sorry than she would have been for any one else who failed to find the world a pleasant place to live in. Something cryptic, yet something that would discourage further confidences without wounding him—this would solve the problem. Finally she hit upon these lines and copied them in her best hand.

He either fears his fate too much, Or his desires are small, That dares not put it to the touch To gain or lose it all.

After reading the lines aloud several times she decided that they would serve her purpose admirably and dispatched it to Mr. Bennett immediately.

The note reached Archie just as he was leaving his sister's house. He had hoped for a long letter in the vein of the girl's charming humor, and the size of the envelope was a distinct disappointment.

He opened it guardedly and his face fell as he pondered the verse. It was a neat, well-kept slip of paper as a man without inhibitions or overcare. At the dinner table she has expressed much the same thought that was condensed in the verse, but the quotation, unaltered by her smile, carried a sting. Perhaps this was the way Miss Perry thought of him, as a hoar in the game of life; but he experienced a pleasant change in the blood when he reflected that this may have been the wrong reading and very different from the sense she meant it to convey. His spirits soared as he decided that the last line was intended to be read unalteredly and that it constituted a challenge flung at him with a touch of her hand, a flash of her brown eyes.

Archie was lulled to sleep by the encouraging thought that what she had done was to give him a commission to redeem himself by strategy and moving adventures.

At two o'clock he reached Bailey Harbor. He stepped into the only taxi in sight and drove to the cottage designated as the key to the Congdon house.

"Just go in and take your time to it," said the man. "Lights and water haven't been turned off and if you take the house your folks can step right in. If you don't find it convenient to stop here again, just leave the key under the door mat."

"I guess you'll find the place all shipshape," said the driver as they got off. "Falls in line up early, but didn't stay long. Left in a hurry. Family troubles, I reckon! I don't know nothing, mind you, but there's talk she had trouble with her husband."

The confidence of the chauffeur only mildly interested Archie. It was unseasonably warm and the air was lifeless and humid.

"Think it will rain," he asked the driver.

"Yep," he replied, with a glance at the sky. "There's going to be a lively kick-up before morning."

They reached the house and Archie discharged the driver. In a moment he was standing in a big living-room that exhaled an atmosphere of comfort and good taste.

Polite satisfied with his investigations, Archie peered up a book, became absorbed and read until he was roused by a clap of thunder that seemed to shake the world. Hurrying to the window he found that the storm had already broken, and that it would be impossible for him to catch the five-eleven.

He turned on the lights and sat down to think. The roof and walls rang under the downpour and he decided that after all to spend the night in an abandoned house would be a lark.

The storm showed no sign of abating and as nightfall deepened the gloom he set about making himself comfortable. Feeling twinges of hunger, he explored the kitchen pantry. The Congdons had left a well-stocked larder and, finding bacon, eggs and bread, he decided that the cooking of supper would be a jolly incident of the adventure. In arranging the table he found a telegram under a plate at what he assumed to be Mrs. Congdon's place. His curiosity overcame his scruples and he read the message:

New York, June 10, 1917.

Mrs. Alice B. Congdon, Bailey Harbor, Maine.

Your letter has your characteristic touch of cruelty. We may as well part now and be done with it. But the children you cannot leave. Remember that I relinquish none of my rights on this point. I demand that you surrender Edith at once and I will communicate with you later about the custody of Harold until such time as he is old enough to come to me.

Patney Congdon.

The cautious hint of the taxi driver that domestic difficulties were responsible for the breaking up of the Congdon household found here a painful corroboration.

After speculating on the affair for a few moments he went ahead with the preparation of his supper. He wished Isabel could see him and know that for once the routine of his life had been interrupted only to find himself resourceful and the easy master of his fate.

He made a point of washing the dishes and putting them away carefully. These matters attended to, he roamed over the house which now had a new interest for him since the Congdon family skeleton had come out of its closet and danced around the dinner table. In a drawer of the desk was an automatic pistol and a box of cartridges. This Archie thrust into his pocket thinking it not a bad idea to be prepared for invasion.

Then he switched off the lights in the lower rooms and established himself in the guest chamber. He was half asleep when he was roused by foot-steps on the veranda below.

Chapter III

It was close upon midnight and the presence of a prowler on the premises caused his heart to gallop wildly. He seized the pistol, crept to the window and peered cautiously out, when a snarl in the room below renewed his alarm. He gained the door in two jumps. He could hear the opening and closing of drawers and saw the flash of an electric lamp as the intruder moved swiftly about. Then through the vast silence of the big house the unknown gave voice to his anger and disappointment:

"Well, I'll be damned!"

A series of quick flashes on the wall gave warning of the intruder's invasion of the upper rooms.

Archie drew back and waited. His thoughts and emotions in this hour of danger interested him. It was immensely gratifying to him to realize that while his heart was beating quickly, his pulse was regular.

The thief had become more cautious and was tiptoeing up the unexpected trends of the stair, still sending occasionally a bar of light ahead. He was now coming boldly down the hall as though satisfied that the house was empty. A flash of his lamp fell upon the door frame just above Archie's left hand. A flash slipped the dark for an instant. Then a hand groped along the wall seeking the switch. Archie could hear its soft rasping over the wall. As the switch snapped the room flooded with light. The bewildering glare leaping out of the darkness held the man in the doorway and he raised his arm and passed his hand over his eyes to shield them from the light. The burglar's shoulders dropped as he sped at Archie's figure which was reflected in a long mirror. The report crashed horribly in the room, followed by the tinkling of fragments of glass. Archie aimed at the doorway, but his shot seemed only to hasten the man's flight. A ring slipped and the fugitive fell with a frightened yell that rang eerily through the house. In the hall Archie turned on all the lights and gaining the landing first at the retreating figure as it lurched toward the front door. At the crack of the gun the

SOMETHING NEW FOR MOTORIST

The motorist who has not visited Florida for a couple of years will be surprised this season at the absence of detours. A couple of years ago it was impossible to go any great distance on Florida roads without having several detours to contend with. Today the motorist can travel across the state, or lengthwise of it, and not have to clear one foot. The roads that have been constructed by the State Road Department, to say nothing of those built by the different counties, makes motoring a joy in Florida.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By KEITH L. BROOKS
(Managing Editor "The King's Business," Secretary Correspondence Courses of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles)

OCTOBER 10, 1927

ELIJAH IN NABOTH'S VINEYARD

Lesson Text—1 Kings 21:1-20

This lesson brings before us the story of a just man who suffered shameful wrongs with dignity and patience. Naboth, because of his fidelity to God and loyalty to the teachings of the scriptures concerning inheritance (Lev. 25:23-28), was stoned to death.

A small vineyard adjoined the enclosure of King Ahab's summer palace at Jezreel. Naboth was the owner. Ahab desired to add it to his estate. He well knew the law that forbade any benefit from alienating the inheritance of his father. This was Naboth's sufficient reason—a conscientious one—for declining to gratify Ahab (v. 3).

Ahab, lord and king of all the territories of Israel, owner of vast estates, couldn't enjoy himself without Naboth's little vineyard. Naboth, a plain peasant, was not coveting anything that Ahab owned. The truly wealthy man is the man who is contented. The poor man is the man who is always craving more.

This king, with his two great palaces, who had all the pleasure that indulgence of power and wealth could command, like an overgrown boy, threw himself on the bed, turned his face to the wall, and refused to eat. He couldn't bear to be thwarted in any desire. He must have his toy garden (v. 4).

How childish and foolish some men become! One trivial want is stronger than many passions. One little disappointment overrules all their blessings. Like a spunky child, Ahab told Jezebel all his trouble. He implied that Naboth's refusal came from some obstinacy and desire to thwart his wishes, whereas he knew that Naboth had put it on the high ground of obedience to God's law.

Just leave it to Jezebel! If she cannot think of a way to tempt this man, no one can. "Aha," and let thy heart be merry," she said. "I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth" (v. 7). Some people are very generous of other people's property.

Ahab knew that the queen would use evil means. He was an accomplice by his silence. Let us not think for a moment that God will not hold us responsible for wrongs of which we are aware and which we have the power to prevent. Such whispering words as Ahab was in, and to which many others are subject, are sure to bring some Jezebel to suggest a crooked way of getting what is wanted.

"She wrote letters in Ahab's name and sealed them with his seal" (v. 7). She deceived the elders and nobles of a fast day, when Naboth was to be executed among the people (v. 9). Then what? Suddenly two men will appear to bear false witness against Naboth. They will say: "Thou didst blaspheme God and the king" (v. 10). He will be carried out and stoned to death and his property confiscated.

Never was a more infamous mandate issued. Murder was to be committed under the color of a religious service. The forms of legal justice were to be employed while every rule of justice was violated. In it all she makes pretense of acknowledging God, for whom she had hitherto manifested nothing but scorn. But there was the king's signed, the badge of authority. The orders must be carried out.

The religious assembly was convened, then transformed into a court. Naboth, suddenly finding himself in a conspicuous place, was charged to add facts with blasphemy and treason. There was no opportunity for answer or disproof. Sentence was pronounced and he was dragged off to his death (v. 13).

Where, in all the record of justice, can one redeeming feature be found? She bears the stamp of utter depravity and demon possession. Her mind was a perfect nest of sins, lying and cunning together. Why should such a picture be drawn upon the pages of Scripture? To show us the depths to which a soul may sink when under Satanic control.

"Jezebel said to Ahab, Arise, take possession of the vineyard" (v. 15). That sounds easy enough. But, as one has said, "there was other stuff on the vines of Naboth's vineyard, than their clustering grapes, as Ahab soon found out." Every drop of juice should remind him of Naboth's blood.

Then, there stood the grim figure of Elijah, like an embodied conscience. "Thus saith the Lord, in the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth, shall dogs lick thy blood, even thus" (v. 19). The man who puts forth his hand to take a fancied good by violating the laws of God, will get more than he expected. He will never fail to hear an accusing voice that has only evil to prophesy.

In due time Elijah's words were fulfilled. Ahab met his death from a bow. Then came the horrible mangling of Jezebel and the slaughter of all the king's sons! Heaven never defiles. The wages of evil are sure, soon or later, and the man who has suffered wrongfully shall have his losses made up to him a million fold on the other side.

Was there any joy for Ahab in his new garden plot? Note the words of Elijah:—"Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?" (v. 20). Great is the power of conscience. A guilty heart can find no peace.

Will men never learn that sin while tempting us is loved—but when finished, is loathed? There is always some Elijah waiting at the gate of our stolen gardens. If conscience is our friend, there is power. When once it is offended, bid goodbye to a tranquil mind.

While a man has his heart set upon evil, he imagines that ashes are gold, and thinks that the true sweet is bitter. He meets the messengers of God with the exclamation—"Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?" This man strangles about in the darkness of sin and unbelief, mistaking the faces of friends for the faces of foes. An awful day of disillusioning is coming.

The best thing that can happen to a man is that God should not let him alone in his evil course. Thank God for messengers of His Gospel! Thank God that He makes men feel the rod! Pity the Ahab and Jezebel who are so hardened that they have "sold themselves to work evil in the sight of the Lord" (v. 20). Nothing but outer and eternal darkness can await such souls.

The man who sells himself to the devil, will have to take his own medicine. It is a voluntary act. It is deliberately submitting to the dominion of sin. Let him remember that in the end, what he is giving for his unhallowed pleasure and dishonest gain is himself—forever.

The 23rd verse is a summary, which did sell himself to work wicked—"There was none like unto Ahab, whom Jezebel, his wife, stirred up." A wife helps not either the best or the worst there is in a husband.

Remember of Jezebel who play upon the weakness of men. Remember that there is to be a resurrection of acts as well as bodies. The Christ-rejecting man who chooses to live his life independently of God, will find himself surrounded in the judgment day, by the ghosts of his own sins.

As each perhaps forgotten sin appears before his face, will he not cry out, as did Ahab to Elijah:—"Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?" And will there not come the answer: "I have, because thou didst sell thyself to work evil in the sight of the Lord?"

PITH AND POINT

There are plenty of tempters for sinless people. (v. 7).

Some who have no regard for God will make religion a cloak for selfish schemes. (v. 9).

Elevation has proved a death trap for many a man. (v. 12).

One may get possession of what it is not God's will for him to have, but he will be certain to get a "Jezebel" with it. The fellow who thought he had gained a vineyard by craft, in reality had lost a throne.

Some sell themselves. (v. 20) to Satan; others sell themselves out for the day.

Placards even by sin is peace lost. A sinner is blind to his true friends and foes. (v. 20).

Covetousness is the father of robbery and the mother of murder.

GOLDEN TEXT ILLUSTRATION

"Be sure your sin will find you out." The proprietor of a bakery tells how a rat was found one morning imprisoned in a hole it had made in a loaf of bread. The rat had nibbled into the loaf and continued feeding until its whole body was inside the loaf. It became so fat as a result of eating so much of the soft bread that it could not get out again. The baker found it in the morning, caught in the trap made by itself. Many a man has been caught in the same way. Bad habits, as at last closed the trap on him, and struggle as he would, he could not escape.

FLORIDA'S RAPID ECONOMIC RECOVERY

A recent article in the Manufacturer-Record supplies many interesting details relative to Florida's condition and growth. This article points out the fact that Florida does not owe a cent and has $14,000,000 in its treasury. Total state and county highway expenditures during 1927 will approximate $25,000,000. Miami Athletic Club completed $1,000,000 club building.

Dade County Board of Public Instruction, Miami, let contract in February for $1,000,000 senior high school.

A $600,000 Dade county agricultural high school is being built at Lemon City.

A Roman Catholic church, costing about $300,000, is under construction at Daytona Beach, and many other churches are being built at other points.

During the first six months of this year, 625 issues of public improvement bonds, with a par value of $281,456,000, were marketed in the sixteen Southern States. Sales of Florida bonds amounted to $79,445,000, representing 115 issues, placing the state ahead of all others in the South. The Florida sales included 57 miscellaneous issues, amounting to $32,762,000; 58 issues for road and street school bond issues, par value of $4,129,500; and nine of sewer, drainage, water work and similar work, totaling $13,885,000.

"All of which shows conclusively that Florida is contributing to expand its housing and equipment facilities, and is laying a substantial foundation for future growth."

"Hundreds of millions of dollars dollars spent by 'outsiders' in Florida—developing and beautifying cities and communities along the coasts and in the lake regions and expanding establishments of one sort or another—still are there, even if their erstwhile owners aren't. Florida always will be a land attractive to tourists—and there is no town, city, village or community in Florida today that has not at least one beautiful, modern, up-to-date hotel, built, in many instances by go-get-rich-quick gentlemen who came, saw—but failed to conquer!"

"It is to laugh—and the last laugh is Florida's. It didn't take long to shake out the small fry and the fly-by-nights; and now that all of the shaking out has pretty well run its course, big and little—look at Florida. There she stands, beautiful, bewitching, even enchanting, with the most glorious climate imaginable and the finest equipment for the delectation and delight of pleasure seekers of any state east of the Rocky Mountains!"

But, Florida is not dependent upon its tourists. It is more than a great health and recreational center. Florida offers unlimited possibilities in the further expansion of its agriculture, which last year added $88,000,000 to the wealth of the state, while its manufactured output, valued at $267,000,000, and mineral production, work, aggregating $18,808,500; 34 valued at $10,050,000, as of the census of 1925, further indicate its economic position among the states of the Union. With Florida's fast growing population and a further development of its natural resources, its wealth creative power in agriculture, industry and commerce will steadily expand.

"Hominess" Is Chief Charm of This Roomy Residence

HIGH sloping roof lines, half-timber beaming and arches are outstanding characteristics of this home in Morris Heights, Pennsylvania. The walls are of concrete masonry, finished in stucco. The use of beaming, in conjunction with stucco, as shown here, is a popular method of exterior treatment which suits itself peculiarly to designs in the English style of architecture.

Sensible Floor Plan.
As both the photograph and the plans indicate, a large amount of window area has been provided—a feature that considerably increases the desirability of the home. The two fireplaces—one in the living room and the other in the main bedroom—add to its homelike atmosphere.

The floor plans illustrate an advantageous space arrangement. There is the central staircase, conveniently located for both the first and second floors, a porch connecting with the living room, and three bedrooms, all adjacent to both the bathroom and the staircase. A garage, which adjoins the house, harmonizes with the general design.

Inviting Exterior.
There is something substantial and inviting about the exterior in general—an effect that pays tribute to the desire to improve the architecture of small and moderate sized dwellings. This house was designed by Walter Hanks, architect, of Trenton, New Jersey.

GIVE THE FARM WOMAN ELECTRIC POWER AND SOLVE OUR FARMING PROBLEMS

NOTED BANKER AND ECONOMIST POINTS TO SOLUTION OF COM-PLEXITIES NOW WITHIN REACH OF SOUTHERN GROWERS AND AGRICULTURAL EN-TERPRISES

Declaring that the farm woman is the crux of the South's agricultural problem and that the extension of electric power to our farms to provide the comforts and conveniences of modern home life to the farm woman while converting farm men from mere existents into profit earning business men, is an outstanding economic necessity in a program of agricultural reorganization, Hon. A. F. Lever, President of the First Capital Bank of South Carolina, on July 8, delivered two notable addresses in Atlanta, one to the Georgia Legislature and the other to several hundred representatives of the Georgia Association assembled from all sections of the state.

Mr. Lever, co-author with former Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, of the Smith-Lever Bill, which is responsible for the county farm agent and home demonstration agent who are performing monumental service to the farmers of the nation, has won international fame as a student of farm economics. His views on the fundamentals of southern agriculture, therefore, are worthy of the most earnest consideration.

In prefacing his address, Mr. Lever took occasion to remark that the Georgia Association plan of organization and work—a plan that combines the city business man and the rural business man, namely the farmer, into the same movement—is a unique thing in the United States and points the way to other states as the practical sort of vehicle that must be constructed to solve the great problems of agriculture. He also declared that farm relief measures embodying the principles of the McNary-Hagen Bill were entirely futile and wrong in principle; that the key to the solution lies rather in the elimination of the farm "existents" who merely live through the drudgery of himself and his family and the substitution in his place of the farmer who enjoys high standards of living; who works with his associates; who takes advantage of labor industrializes his farm running it in accordance with the same principles of saving machinery; and who, in short, sound economics that are being utilized in other modern industrial enterprises.

The following paragraphs, taken from Mr. Lever's remarkable address, are worthy of the most careful reading—purposes by all those interested in getting at the bottom of the complex problems confronting the American farmer.

"Of course our greatest hindrance is our unmatched soil resources. Agriculture is and will continue to be the chief business of our people. What we want to do with respect to this is to get the proper leadership to industrialize it, to cut out of it its inefficiency and to make it a business that is as attractive to brains and capital as is any other business. Agriculture is looked upon too much as something out of which to make a living. We want to make it a something out of which to make a profit. We want the standard of living of the farmer just as high as, if not a little higher than, the standard of living of our city relative."

"I am teaching my boy and my girl to be proud of the fact that they live upon the farm. The country community, the farm homes, have given to our nation its greatest statesmanship and yet among country people there quite measure up socially and other-seems to be a feeling that they do not live to the people of the towns and the cities. Let the farmer be proud of the fact that he is a farmer. Let your legislative program at all times include in it the basic thought that agriculture is fundamental and must not be overlooked. Support your farm demonstration work. Let your appropriations be liberal and not parsimonious in support of it. Especially support the home economics work."

"The farm woman after all is the crux of the agricultural problem. Give her through the extension of electric power the comforts and conveniences enjoyed by the city woman and there will be less disposition on her part to want to leave the farm. No one except a country woman who was born and raised on the farm can appreciate the drudgery of the average farmwoman and how little she gets out of life. If this personal ailment may be pardoned I wish to say that I want it written upon my tomb that I was the first man in American history through a Federal statute to recognize the existence of the farm woman. I crave no better epitaph."

"Next in importance among the assets of this section, after education, are our tremendous water power resources. Power is the keystone of the future. Power, electric power, hydroelectric power, is the advance agent of civilization. Perhaps the greatest contribution to mankind ever made was that of Volta when he demonstrated the electric spark, next in importance being Edison's contribution in the way of showing how to transmit power over long distances. Near my own city of Columbia a development is just beginning which will involve an expenditure of twenty million dollars. A similar expenditure will be made shortly. I am advised, on the Savannah River. These developments, following the developments already accomplished, are only the beginning of the revolution industrially, economically, socially, agriculturally and politically that is going to come about within your time and mine in this section of these United States."

"The full utilization of our power resources is to be about a new day in the South. In this connection may I divert for a moment to say that the power, the water power, of all the states east of the Mississippi River and south of Mason and Dixon's line belongs to all of the people of each of the states. The power being developed near Columbia, S. C., is as much the power of Atlanta as being developed near Columbia, S. C., and if we are wise, as we look far into the future we shall insist on the doctrine that our rivers with their great latent power belong to no one state but to all the states."

"The theory advanced by short-sighted statesmen that Muscle Shoals, for example, belongs to Alabama is ridiculous just as the thought that the prime purpose of the development of Muscle Shoals is to produce cheap nitrates is equally ridiculous. Muscle Shoals has already sent its power when most needed into the Carolinas. That enterprise ought to be developed along the line of making a great super-power enterprise with the production of nitrates as a minor key in the program. The daily-dallying of congress for ten years in the disposition of Muscle Shoals amounts to almost a legislative crime. Who shall develop it is not the great question. The thing to do is to develop it. Let the baby be born and get over with the agony."

"With this development over and with our other underdeveloped powers linked up with it the utilization of the power of the South will begin. The legislatures of our various states will show themselves wise if they adopt a policy of liberal laws toward capital which desires to come among us for the development of our underdeveloped resources, particularly our underdeveloped water power resources. It is absurd economically for Georgia to ship cotton to Manchester to have it manufactured into cloth which we ourselves consume when capital is standing ready to harness our power to do the work for us and to save the freight bill both ways."

"In my trip through Georgia yesterday I noticed thousands and thousands of acres of abandoned farms. I used to think this a tragic situation. As I have grown older, and I hope wiser, the abandoned farm does not alarm me but these abandoned farms constitute a very positive asset to Georgia and the Carolinas. Let them reforest themselves as they will in twenty or twenty-five years. Let Georgia and South Carolina adopt measures for the encouragement of reforestation and reforestation. Let us conserve the forests we now have through wise legislative control measures and encourage the reforestation of the abandoned farms. This may seem a very minor thing but to my mind the conservation of our forest resources is one of the very large problems ahead of us. Forestry constitutes a real asset."—Georgia Magazine.

EDUCATIONAL VALUE OF THE FAIRS STRESSED

By Spuds Johnson

Fair time is just about here in parts of Florida. Pretty soon farm families will be quitting work for the day, loading up the old fiver and going to town to see the fair.

When I was a kid the greatest attractions about the fair were found along the mid-way. The ferris wheel, the whip, the mechanical horses, the wild man, the snake eater and the vendors of soft drinks, eatables and chances often were a good many nickels richer after I had passed along. Of course I usually went through the exhibit buildings, but it was not often that I saw anything as interesting as the things along the mid-way.

Fairs are put on for a purpose, and that purpose is not primarily the selling of hot foods, cold drinks, riding thrills, chances, etc. Of course it is great to get away from the humdrum existence of the farm, go into town and mill around with the crowds along the mid-way. This gives people of the farm a chance to get some amusement and entertainment, and goodness knows they don't get any too much of either.

However, the prime object of fairs, and their excuse for being, is their educational value. Fairs are intended to show the products of a community, county, section, or state.

Like nearly every other form of education, however, that supplied by the fairs requires some study. When we look over the exhibits, we should study them. The products exhibited have been grown by people in our own people probably do not have a great deal better chance than we do on our own farms. They have naturally put their most perfect specimens on exhibit, but that enables us to study the best types of crops, and try to grow our like them another year. When judging is going on in the livestock ring, we can often get valuable tips from the judge about the best type animals, and why he considers a certain type best.

It adds spice to the fair if we have an exhibit of our own on display. Then we are apt to be more interested in what is going on in the exhibit halls, and not so much along the mid-way. We will likely make a closer study of the products exhibited, and see wherein they excel our own, and ours excel them.

The fairs have an educational value, but like schools, some people can attend them all their lives and never "graduate,"—never learn a great deal of real value.

STUDEBAKER BREAKS ITS LATEST RECORD AT ATLANTIC CITY

Repeating, within fifteen days, their performance at Atlantic City on September 5, Studebaker Commander Sport Roadsters made a clean sweep of the entire field in the 75-mile race for stock cars priced below $2000 on the Charlotte, N. C., Speedway, September 20. They placed first, second, and third respectively.

The race was won by Ralph Hepburn, who crossed the finish line after averaging 88.56 miles per hour for the 75 miles. Eddie House finished his Commander in second place, and Al Jenkins, also driving a Commander Sport Roadster, finished in third place. None of the three Commanders entered made any stops in the pits and all finished the 75-mile grind in perfect condition.

Hepburn, who piloted the winning Commander in the Atlantic City race, increased his average speed by 2.53 miles per hour—from 85.95 miles per hour to an 88.56 miles per hour average. After seeing the performance made by three Commanders in the preliminary trials, several of the competitive cars withdrew entirely from the race.

All three of the Commanders were checked by the technical committee of the American Automobile Association, and were pronounced strictly stock models in every respect.

Mr. J. A. McCarty who is salesman for Kinsman Automobile Co., states he sold over fifty cars last year in St. Cloud, making an average of over one car per week.
